Z-Plane hull design features overlapping, horizontal surfaces that mimic the appearance of window blinds, or shingles on a roof. Stingray says these surfaces act as horizontal planing surfaces when submerged; near the water's surface the outside edge begins to act as a spray release. The smooth flow of water generated by the design is claimed to deliver cleaner water to the prop, allowing it to take a better bite both in straight-line runs and hard corners. Z-Plane hulls also get a notched transom, a trait common among offshore race boats. The design allows the drive to be mounted higher, reducing drag.

Great family ski boat! This boat runs great and is ready for a new family to get her out on the water and have some fun.
